MURDER PROBE TO BE RENEWED.

Officials At Harlan To Resift Death Of Miss
Lura Parsons Brutally
Murdered Seven Weeks Ago.

GARRARD COUNTY PEOPLE ARE INTERESTED.

A special from Harlan, Ky., to the Courier Journal last Sunday, says that the murder probe of Miss Lura Parsons who was brutally murdered seven weeks ago while walking alone on a trail to the Pine Mountain school, is to be revived. Friends and relatives in Garrard County of the murdered teacher will be interested to hear that this is to be done and many here have wondered why the investigation was ever stopped.

The article to the Courier Journal says:

Seven weeks after the assault and murder of Miss Lura Parsons, Pine Mountain Settlement School teacher, on a lonely trail, the criminal is still at large.

"What else can be done?" said County Attorney J. C. Forester after he had told a Courier Journal correspondent what steps of investigation had been taken and that the grand jury had failed to indict.

"I will resubmit the case to the next grand jury in January," was the way Commonwealth's Attorney H. Grant Forester, after a moment's thought, replied to an inquiry as to any future steps the officials might take.

State Senator Hiram Brock, Republican leader in the Senate, declared, at the end of his interview, that he would take the initiative in reopening the investigation. "There will be no difficulty in raising a large sum to attract skilled detectives," Senator Brock said, "and I assure you that it will be done. The cause of education in the mountains must not be made to suffer, and the stain must be removed from Harlan County."

Charges of gross laxness in guarding of prisoners at the convict camp and of a deliberate effort on the part of the guards to shield the felons during the investigation were made by the Harlan County officials who contended that the murder bore all earmarks of a negro's crime.

About 11 o'clock on the morning of Tuesday, September 7th, Miss Parsons left a train at Dillon, a road crossing, to start on a six-mile walk over a mountain trail to the school. She never reached the school. Thursday night a searching party found her body at the base of a ledge at the side of the trail. She had been assaulted and murdered. A fence rail found nearby was the instrument of death. Blows had been rained with it on her head.

Dr. H. C. Winnes, veterinarian employed by the State, who also had left the train at Dillon and started, mule-back over the mountain after Miss Parsons had started afoot, was arrested in Frankfort the next day.

He asserted he had taken a circuitous route due to getting off the trail, and had missed that part of the trail on which the murder was committed. He was unable to account for the fact that it took him more than an hour longer than usual to cross the trail.

To reach the mountain trail Miss Parsons passed a convict camp three-quarters of a mile from Dillon. The convicts, nearly all negroes, work on a pike which circles the mountain and crosses the trail at the point about fifteen minutes walk from the camp. Suspicion was directed toward four or five negroes. From the beginning Capt. John Marcum, in charge of the prisoners, contended that none of his men was guilty.

County officials, after questioning Winnes on his return to Harlan Saturday announced belief in his innocence and turned their attention to the convict camp.

Grand Jury Does Not Act.
The next day a blood-stained coat was found hanging near the bunk of one of the suspected convicts. It was taken to Louisville for chemical analysis by the State Board of Health to determine whether the blood was that of a human or of an animal.

The grand jury took up the investigation Monday. Circuit Judge Davis told the body to take all time necessary. It was adjourned Thursday, and Dr. Winnes, the warrant against him dismissed by the jury, left Harlan. The jury reconvened Monday, remained in session Tuesday and then

HARDING SWEEPS THE COUNTRY.

Receives Largest Popular
Vote Ever Recorded.

MAY GET 400 ELECTORIAL VOTES.

By majorities unprecedented in American politics, Warren G. Harding was elected President and Calvin Coolidge, Vice President last Tuesday. The addition of the women to the electorate attributed in many ways to the heavy increased majorities. The highest previous state plurality ever recorded, was when Roosevelt carried Pennsylvania over Parker by a plurality of over 500,000, but it was surpassed several times last Tuesday if later returns bear out those that have been received up to date.

New York State is claimed for Harding by a plurality of 1,000,000, Pennsylvania by one almost as large, Illinois gives Harding 800,000 and Ohio's plurality for Harding may reach 400,000.

Returns indicate that Harding will receive nearly 400 votes in the Electoral college. He has carried practically every state in the North, East and West crossing the Mason and Dixon line and capturing West Virginia. Cox may carry a few border states and the solid South.

All Records Are Broken.

All over the country the Harding pluralities broke records. Maine, which surprised all prophets by going 70,990 Republican at the gubernatorial election in September, passed that mark by several thousand today.

California, which Wilson carried by so narrow a margin in 1916, went for Harding by what early reports described as a landslide.

Indiana and Kansas seem to have rolled up more than 200,000 plurality for Harding.

Harding carried his home precincts 373 to 76. It was Democratic four years ago, though there was a reapportionment since. He seems to have carried Cox's home town of Dayton, carried Hyde Park, N. Y., residence of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for Vice President, by 279 votes to 194; and he carried President Wilson's home district in Princeton, N. J., by a margin of five to one.

From coast to coast veteran and popular Democrats fell in the general collapse. The disaster which seems to have beaten Alfred E. Smith out of the governorship of New York has also defeated Senator James D. Phelan for re-election in California, despite his great popularity throughout the State.

Taggart Is Loser.

Thomas Taggart, Indiana, candidate for the Senate against James E. Watson, the present holder of the seat was thought likely a few weeks ago to win his fight, but though Watson has apparently run behind the Presidential ticket by many thousands, he seems sure of election.

Factional fights in Illinois and Wisconsin did not disturb the Republicans. The battle in the primaries between the Thompson and Lowden factions in Illinois had caused bitter animosity and several Republican papers, including the Chicago Tribune, supported James Hamilton Lewis the Democratic nominee, for Governor against Len Small, the Thompson Republican candidate. But Lewis was overwhelmingly defeated and William B. McKinley, the Low-

GARRARD REPUBLICAN

Heavy Vote Polled
Here Last Tuesday.

EIGHTY PER CENT OF THE WOMEN VOTE EXERCISE SUFFRAGE.

The heaviest vote ever polled in the history of Garrard County was polled here last Tuesday, when 5437 votes were polled during the day. The election was quiet as one could have made it although the interest manifested by both party's never laxed until the polls were closed in the afternoon.

One of the chief features of the day was the large number of women voters, to say nothing of the women workers of both parties that worked unceasingly throughout the day.

As was expected Garrard County went Republican but not by as large a majority as the workers of this party had predicted; the final vote showing a majority of 553 for the Electors, while Swope's majority was 573 or a gain of 20 votes ahead of the ticket.

Ernst majority over Beckham being 541; Ernst running behind the ticket 11 votes, which result shows the feeling of the voters toward Beckham in this county.

One of the surprises of the day was the woman vote, and it is estimated that 80 per cent of this vote came out. Strange to relate there were very few spoilt ballots in the county, even though over two thousand women cast their first vote on that day. It also shows that very little "scratching" was done, some precincts showing that not a single ballot was scratched out of the entire poll.

A detail of the county vote by precincts is shown in another column in this paper.

den Republican candidate, was elected by a huge majority over Waller, his Democratic opponent.

In Wisconsin Senator Irving Luther Lenroot a mild reservationist on league question, was opposed by James Thompson, a La Follette man and representative of the bitter-end anti-league faction. But Lenroot won hardly and Paul S. Reinsch, former Minister to China, who was the Democratic candidate had to dispute with the Socialist for third honors.

Moses Is Re-elected.

In New Hampshire Senator George H. Moses, one of the bitter opponents of the league, had been disturbed in his campaign by echoes from the primary, for a pro-League Republican, but he to won with ease.

One of the most surprising features which have usually been counted on was the huge vote rolled up by cities as Democratic in the past. In Boston, where the Irish vote can usually be counted on to carry the city even though the rest of the State is strongly Republican, Harding won by 20,000. The league issue has been too much for the Irish voters.

The Republican sweep of the Presidency carried with it considerably increased majorities in both houses of Congress. Returns indicate that the next Senate would have fifty-three Democrats as compared with forty-nine Republicans and forty-seven Democrats at present.

The House of Representatives seems likely to include 247 Republicans, 183 Democrats, 2 independents and 1 Prohibitionist, giving the Republicans a clear majority of 53. The Republican majority in the present House is thirty-eight.

GILBERT

Defeats Swope By Handsome Majority

Unofficial figures from the Eighth District show that it has rolled up an old-time Democratic majority and that Judge Ralph Gilbert has defeated King Swope by a majority that may reach 3,500 by the time the official count is made.

This splendid majority is very gratifying to the Democrats throughout the district and are also pleased that Judge Gilbert has been landed a winner. It was hotly contested over every county of the district Swope's friends leaving nothing unturned to elect him.

The unofficial figures in this race are as follows:

	Gilbert	Swope
Adair		1200
Anderson	900
Casey		1100
Boyle	995
Lincoln	50
Mercer	900

County Board Of Education.

The result of the election last Saturday, in which an election of a County Board of Education was voted upon, shows that six Republicans were easily elected. On the ballot were the names of eight people, three Democrats and five Republicans. The five receiving the largest number of votes and will be issued certificates later, were: Messrs. Oscar Ray, John Wynn, C. B. Ledford, J. M. Crisillis and Mrs. Lizzie Bruner.

FOX HUNTERS

To Meet At Crab Orchard Next Week.

Everything is in readiness at Crab Orchard Springs for the National Fox Hunters Association which meets at that place next Monday, November 8th. The program will last throughout the week and it is predicted that over 200 dogs will be entered in the many stakes that will be offered at this meeting. Five hundred guests are expected during the week and probably as many more will be attracted there next Tuesday night for the Fox Hunters dance. The Derby will be run Friday and this will attract a large gathering as it always has done in the past. Many from Lancaster and this county will attend.

Christian Church Notes

Plans have been arranged to make the month of November a month of unusual interest at the Christian Church. Special services will be held every Sunday. Next Sunday will be Women's Day. The second Sunday will be Men's Day. The third Sunday will be Boy's and Girl's Day. The fourth Sunday will be Membership Day. Special music will be rendered at these different services and a sermon in keeping with the occasion will be preached.

Next Sunday the subject will be "The Woman of Today and The Church." A woman's quartette composed of Mrs. L. G. Davidson, Mrs. J. W. Sweeney, Mrs. Leonard Miller and Mrs. Ben Robinson, will sing a special number. The evening subject will be "The Beneficence of Retribution"—a companion of the one preached last Sunday evening.

The members of the congregation are urged to bear these special meetings in mind and to attend all of them if at all possible. All others of the town and community are invited to be present at any or all of the services.

Football Ball Here Friday.

Lancaster has developed one of the best football teams among the high schools of the Blue Grass, having met defeat only one time this season. They have a splendid schedule for the next three weeks beginning next Friday they will play on the local grounds, the Hustonville team, said to be the next best in the circuit. This will be a dandy game and a good crowd should go out to cheer the boys next Friday, tomorrow afternoon.

On Armistice Day, Nov. 11th, here they will play that crack team Lexington High; and on the 19th, Richmond High; on the 26th, Nicholasville on the latter ground.

KENTUCKY

Returns To Democratic Column.

BECKHAM DEFEATS ERNST BY GOOD MAJORITY.

While practically the rest of the country went Republican Kentucky returns to her first love and gets back into the Democratic column with a good safe majority that may reach 20,000 or even more, according to the latest returns, yet a few counties have not been heard from, which will not materially change the result.

Latest tabulation returns in the race between Senator Beckham and R. P. Ernst, Covington, for United States Senator, as received by the Associated Press and The Louisville Times, show Senator Beckham has a majority of 6,094. In cases where a few mountain counties are out, the majorities of 1916 have been doubled for purposes of estimation. This is considered a liberal estimate and it is believed that Senator Beckham probably will have a larger majority than the figure indicated. Kenton County, which went 4,600 for Cox, went more than 1,000 for Ernst. Senator Beckham ran behind and Ernst ahead of their respective tickets there, Ernst picking up 2,000.

Governor Cox would seem to have carried the State safely by about 16,000.

New Claim By Searcy.

Chesley H. Searcy, Republican Campaign Committee chairman, issued the following statement yesterday:

"The Republican party has carried Kentucky. Harding's majority will be 7,000. Ernst is unquestionably elected by at least 15,000. Figures given by the Democratic press on which the Democratic majorities are claimed are altogether misleading and absolutely incorrect. This is shown from the fact that in the following counties, Knox, Letcher, Harlan, Lewis, McCreary and Magoffin, they have understated Republican majorities by 7,388 and in many other Republican counties they have understated Democratic majorities amounting to several thousand.

"The Republican party is, as it has always done, demanding a fair count, that the will of the people may be accurately ascertained. This, the Republican party on its part will give and it demands from every public official in Kentucky the utmost vigilance in recording an exact record of the people's vote. Every good citizen, regardless of party, should see to it that the ballot of Kentucky is preserved and not prostituted."

Efficient Service.

We would feel that we were ungrateful indeed, if we did not at this time thank the telephone girls of the Basin Telephone Company for their efficient and untiring services, which they so obligingly rendered the public and the election return headquarters last Tuesday night. No better or prompter service could have been rendered, and on behalf of the public benefited we take this means of thanking them.

Big Mouth Bass.

Mr. John Forbes, who lives near the waterworks, holds the record for the largest fish we have ever seen around these diggings for several years. Saturday evening late he landed a big mouth bass at the lake that weighed 7½ pounds and was 21½ inches long. Old Isaac Walton himself, when in his prime could not discount John Forbes when it comes to catching the big un's. This fish was caught with a tandem spinner and a common hand pole was used. The writer felt heir to the big bass and is deeply grateful for the three meals this mammoth specimen of the finny tribe furnished.

More Vegetables.

Since our last issue, some more mammoth vegetables have been brought to this office; among them being a huge kershaw, of the crock-neck variety, grown by Mr. Mason Pollard. It weighs 43 pounds and is a beauty. A couple of large cabbage raised by John Forbes, one of the best gardeners in the county are on display here and weigh ten pounds each. A beet weighing 11½ pounds was brought in by Mr. J. W. Carroll and it "takes the cake" for size over any we have ever seen.

The annual silver tea of the Ladies Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church will be held at the church Nov. 12th, at 7:30 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

ARMISTICE DAY.

Arrangements Completed For Big Celebration By Hedral Sanford Post Of The American Legion.

PARADE AND ERASS BAND.

Final details are being rapidly completed for the celebration of Armistice Day, Thursday, November 11th, by the Hedral Sanford Post of the American Legion, which will include a parade headed by a brass band, in which all ex-service men will participate, public speaking by some of the ex-service men and other prominent speakers from over the state.

All of the ex-service men will assemble at one o'clock on the school grounds, where the parade will be formed and with a brass band will march to town, after which some athletic features will be indulged in, such as a one-half mile race, one-fourth mile race, 20 yard dash, 100 yard dash, Bicycle races, Potato races, Three legged races, etc.

These events are all open to school children and all ex-service men. Premiums will be awarded the winners. It will be a grand and glorious day and we predict that a banner crowd will be in attendance from this and surrounding counties. The Caswell Saufley Post No. 18 of Stanford will be special guests of the local Post on that day.

A football game between Lexington High and Lancaster High, will be another feature of the day. Admission to the game will be free to all ex-service men.

The program will close at a meeting at the Court House at 7:30 P. M. where prominent speakers will be heard, among them being the State Commander of the American Legion.

Good Woman Passes Away.

Again we are called upon to chronicle the death of one of Lancaster's oldest and most beloved women, the Grim Reaper having called the spirit of Mrs. Letitia Ware last Friday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert McRoberts, on Danville street, where she had made her home several years.

Mrs. Ware had a host of friends in Lancaster who will be grieved to learn of her passing. The immediate cause of her death was infirmities, due to her age, being in her 84th year. She had been complaining for several days, but those that were near and dear to her never realized that the end was so near, but when her daughter went to her room Friday morning about six o'clock, Mrs. Ware was found unconscious and never rallied, the end coming about thirty minutes later.

Mrs. Ware had been a devoted member of the Baptist Church since her early childhood and when her health permitted, always attended these services. The remains were carried to Hopkinsville, her old home, for burial, after short services at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. McRoberts Friday afternoon. Burial taken place Saturday.

Beside Mrs. McRoberts she is survived by two other children, Messrs. Harry and James Ware, of Hopkinsville.

Ware

Some seven or eight years ago, Mrs. Letitia Ware came to Lancaster to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. R. E. McRoberts. A woman of culture and refinement with a rare sense of humor, broad views, kind and sympathetic, a most congenial companion and a fine christian character. All who knew her loved her. Her wish was that she might "go to sleep and wake over there," was granted, and now she rests under the shade of the trees, rests from her labors of love and charity and "her works do follow her."

One who loved her and whose days will be saddened by her going.

Bridge Party

Mrs. Howard Markley entertained a few guests at a bridge party Wednesday afternoon complimentary to her house guest, Mrs. Sallie Ross Lawson, of Lancaster, Ky. Several other affairs will be given this week for the pleasure of Mrs. Markley's guest, who will spend next week here. —Danville Illinois News.

Serious sickness often comes when you least suspect. You may feel a little over-tired. You haven't been exposed to contagion, yet all of a sudden you are flat on your back and in for a siege of sickness.

Your blood did not have fighting qualities. It was weak and thin. Your vitality and powers of resistance were low.

When you overdo you use up energy. Your blood is driven to do more than it can. It becomes clogged with waste. The waste acts like poison. Disease germs get in your blood and dominate.

Don't let yourself get run down. Take the good tonic, Pepto-Mangan. It makes rich, red blood that will resist and rout out disease germs.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. Comes in either liquid or tablet form. Both have the same effect.

Noonan's Conviction Profitable. Found Guilty In Court His Sentence Nets Him $1000 Plus Good Habit.

Michael Noonan of Buffalo, N. Y., has the habit now and the money, and he is going to keep both. But a year ago he had not either. A year ago Noonan was arraigned in a Buffalo police court. Judge Piper decided that what Mike needed most was a course in thrift and saving so he was sentenced to turn over $15 a week for a year to the probation officer of the court, to be invested in Government Savings Stamps.

Noonan faithfully obeyed the mandate of the court. In fact, as he says he "got stuck on it." Some weeks he handed over more than the required amount, his top figure for one week being $48.

On the day his probation was up, the probation officer was in court to turn over a thousand dollars, the results of the year of saving, but Noonan did not show up. He reached Noonan by telephone.

"I have got $1,000 for you, Mike," he said. "You can have it in the Savings Stamps or you can have the money. Come over and get it."

"I'm too busy," answered Noonan over the wire. "Let the Stamps wait. Why would I be coming over for them today? I'd have to lay off and I'd lose money."

Noonan has the habit.

NEW PLAN FOR MADISONVILLE School Superintendent OUTLINES SCHEME FOR PUPILS TO INVEST IN SAVINGS STAMPS.

Practical lessons in thrift are features of the public school system of Madisonville, Kentucky.

City Superintendent of Schools Gattin is enthusiastic over the lessons prepared and supplied by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department and they are used in all of the Madisonville schools. Mr. Gattin is anxious that these lessons be given practical value.

Last year he ran a bank account at one of the Madisonville banks, and hundreds of the school children by making weekly deposits accumulated sums ranging up from one dollar to as high as twelve and fifteen dollars. The bank allowed four per cent interest, and at the end of the school session Mr. Gattin issued checks to the pupils to cover the amount. This year he will have a system for the sale of Thrift Stamps to take the place of savings bank plan.

A LANCASTER INTERVIEW

Mr. Davis Tells His Experience.

The following brief account of an interview with a Lancaster man four years ago, and its sequel, will be read with keen interest by every citizen. W. C. Davis, tailor, Danville Pike, Lancaster, says: "Some time ago my kidneys were in bad condition. I suffered with pains across my back and through my loins. My kidneys were irregular in action and I had to get up many times at night to pass the secretions. I had considerable stooping over to do and I became easily tired and languid. Doan's Kidney Pills brought relief and I think they are a fine kidney medicine."

Famous Landmark
The old windmill on the famous Wimbledon common, a few miles out of London, has been chosen the chief feature that has made it a landmark for many generations. Its four sails, which could be seen many miles away, have been removed, the common conservators having been a bit of that owing to their great age they were a danger, not only to the structure, but to those living in the mill house underneath. The old windmill presents a strange appearance without the sails.

CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH
Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed—Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Paint Rock, Ala.—Mrs. C. M. Stegall, of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed, suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak, I couldn't walk across the floor; just had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried every thing I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and slept poorly. I believe if I hadn't heard of and taken Cardui I would have died. I bought six bottles, after a neighbor told me what it did for her.

"I began to eat and sleep, began to gain my strength and am now well and strong. I haven't had any trouble since. . . I sure can testify to the good that Cardui did me. I don't think there is a better tonic made and I believe it saved my life."

For over 40 years, thousands of women have used Cardui successfully, in the treatment of many womanly ailments. If you suffer as these women did, take Cardui. It may help you, too. At all druggists. E 85 announced it had exhausted all possible evidence and could not find an indictment.

MURDER PROBE TO BE RE-NEWED.

A detective employed by the Pine Mountain Settlement School, who spent a week on the case, left. He complained that the county authorities would not co-operate with him. He was convinced and indictment should have been returned.

Probe Virtually At End.

Thus, within two weeks after the crime the investigation virtually ceased. The Harlan officials, however, were hopeful that the examination of the garment would prove human blood stained it, thereby strengthening their theory that a convict was the woman's assailant. In view of the fact, however, that it had not been established who wore the coat the afternoon of the crime, its value as evidence was open to question.

The State Board of Health reported this week that chemical analysis showed that it was not human blood.

The most damaging evidence tending to incriminate Dr. Winnes was the difference in the time is supposed to have taken him to make the trip to the settlement school and the time the trip usually requires.

Dr. Winnes told the grand jury County Attorney Forester said, that he left Dillion between 12 and 12:30 o'clock and arrived at the school about 4 o'clock, but did not know the exact time of his arrival. Testimony of witnesses at the school varied from 3:30 to 4 o'clock. It usually requires two hours to make the trip on mule-back.

The doctor went out of his way for a distance, but it is proved that this would have delayed him only ten or fifteen minutes at the most, whereas the difference between the time he made the trip and the usual length of time, according to his own story, as well as that of other witnesses, was at least an hour and possibly an hour and a half.

Dr. Winnes testified, according to the County Attorney that he took his time in making the trip and that was the only way he himself could account for the length of time it required. Wilson Lewis, Dillion man who hired a mule to Dr. Winnes, testified that the doctor left Dillion about 11:30.

Teacher Leaves Dillion.

The train reached Dillion at 11 o'clock, Miss Parsons and Dr. Winnes went to the little store and postoffice of H. H. Lewis, where the doctor suggested to the teacher that she should not walk over the mountains but allow him to get a mule for her. She thanked him but said she preferred to walk.

He then told her he would be glad to pay for the mule. She again thanked him and entered the post-office to send her suitcase by parcel post. She then started off down the railroad. In the meantime Dr. Winnes had sent word to Wilson Lewis, owner of the mule, who lived a short distance away, and as soon as Lewis appeared with the animal, Winnes started. The last he saw of Miss Parsons, the doctor testified, was when she disappeared from view down the railroad track.

From Dillion to the convict camp is a fifteen or twenty-minute walk. Guards and men engaged in construction work at the camp were eating dinner at the time Miss Parsons walked down the railroad track past the camp, their testimony shows. They had not finished eating when the doctor appeared, according to their stories. The doctor was directed by negroes at the camp to take a trail which meets the trail Miss Parsons took about half way between the railroad and the pike road on the mountainside. They placed the time at about 12:15.

Doctor Meets Negro.

The doctor told the jury that he got back to the trail and when he reached the pike, which is about a quarter of a mile above the convict camp, he took the pike to the right instead of following the trail, being uncertain which to take. He said he looked for Miss Parsons' tracks, but could not see any. Around the bend in the pike, he testified he came across a negro asleep at the air compressor.

He aroused the negro and asked him about the road. The convict told him he could not make the trip on the pike and took him back down the road and showed him another path which led back into the trail to the school, several hundred yards beyond the point where Miss Parsons was slain, which he took. He had no further trouble in getting to the school, he said.

Miss Parsons, evidence shows, after crossing the mountain pike, went on up the trail for a short distance, almost within calling distance of the pike, and sat down on a rock at the side of the trail to eat some candy. She was attacked there, struck several blows on the arm with a fence rail and after a desperate struggle was dragged behind the rock. The blows in her head, which caused her death, were delivered while she lay on the ground, the theory is, as there was no blood on her clothing.

Negro Fixes Time.

Jerry Reedy the negro at the compressor, insists that it was after the train had returned that Winnes appeared. The train goes back past the convict camp about 1:25 o'clock.

J. H. Caldwell, steam shovel guard, testified that he went up the trail about 1 o'clock and that he did not see anything of Dr. Winnes. The negro, Reedy, maintains Winnes appeared long after Caldwell went past on his way up the road to the steam shovel. Any attempt to connect Dr. Winnes with the crime was predicated on the assumption that he went up to trail behind Miss Parsons after crossing the pike and that after the crime was committed, returned to the pike and then over to the compressor.

Several persons at the settlement school testified that Dr. Winnes acted like a man who was either "crazy or drugged," and that he remained a long time in his room after his arrival.

Dr. Winnes told a young man who helped him test the cattle that a teacher had started over the trail ahead of him. The next day he told several of the women at the school and learned that she had not appeared. Winnes left that afternoon for Frankfort. The next night the body was found by a searching party.

Discovery of the track of a broken shoe eight feet to the side of the trail where the crime was committed figured the evidence. This shoe, witnesses testified, tallied with that on the mule of Winnes rode. The broken shoe was taken off the mule and fitted into the track. This evidence was no value, Harlan officials said, however, owing to the fact that the same mule had been over the trail previously during the week.

The owner of the mule swore that he went over the trail with the mule September 4, that he returned September 8 and went back again September 9 and that the animal did not wander from the trail on any of these trips; and that he had never known him to leave the trail.

Following discovery of the body, Sheriff H. H. Howard went to the scene of the crime and after examining the corpse, visited the convict camp that night.

The guards told him all the seventy-five convicts were accounted for and that only one, Sam Ellery, who drove the dinner wagon, was near the scene of the crime, the Sheriff declares. He examined Ellery and his clothing and found no indications of his guilt.

The next Sunday the Sheriff and other officials and about 200 citizens again visited the camp. Then he learned from the guards that four other negroes were open to suspicion. They were James Robinson, who hauled water; Houston Holladay, dishwasher, who was with Ellery on the water wagon; Allen Porter and Roy Stubblefield.

The two latter had returned to the camp at noon with the guards to eat dinner, and together had gone back up the mountain to work, unaccompanied by the guards.

Guards Meet Negroes.

Guards who went back to the camp for dinner said they met Ellery and Holladay on the dinner wagon between the point where the trail crosses the mountain and the compressor. The wagon containing both men returned to the camp before the guards went back to the mountains, they testified. The wagon made the trip around the pike.

The guards, on their way back to the camp, also saw Robinson eating his lunch at the water barrels beside a branch. The trail which the woman crossed is in plain view from where Robinson was, evidence showed.

Robinson claimed that he hauled water over to the place on the pike where the men were at work and then took part in a crap game. It was near Robinson's bunk that the bloodstained coat was found. Robinson denied wearing it. It developed the coat belonged to the cook, who testified that some of the negroes had borrowed it and that the blood was due to handling a beef a few days before. The tag number on the coat proved it belonged to the cook, Superintendent Green of the camp testified and a negro named Bradshaw had it on the mountain Tuesday. Bradshaw was one of the negroes who were returned to Frankfort the day before the body was found.

When the guards left the mountainside for dinner twelve or fifteen convicts were left alone for some time at "the rock," which is located several hundred yards beyond the compressor. Four other guards, who had been in charge of prisoners a quarter of a mile beyond the rock went to this point to get their dinner and found these negroes unguarded, they testified. They reached there before 12:30, they said.

It was also testified that Henry Gray, a negro prisoner, went off the mountain alone to the convict camp about 2 o'clock.

Jerry Reed, the negro who worked at the compressor and who piloted the doctor back on the trail, walked to the camp for dinner and returned to the mountain. He went back before the guards did. Caldwell, the steam-shovel man, who also returned before the guards, said Reed was at the compressor when he passed.

Shoe Print Recables Convict's
J. B. Carter, City Attorney of Harlan, testified that he examined the shoe print of Miss Parsons' assailant and that it was made by a broad-toe shoe, such as is worn by the convicts. It was proved that the doctor's shoe was pointed.

Houston Holladay, the negro dishwasher, who was on the dinner wagon, was the only one of the negroes before the grand jury who showed nervousness. According to County Attorney Forester. The negro at one time during his grilling showed indications of breaking down, the official said.

Answering criticism that the investigation should not have been allowed to end, the Harlan officials charged that the guards at the convict camp "had covered up" and made it impossible for them to fasten the crime on one of the negroes. They openly accused the camp authorities of being lax in guarding the convicts and then with deliberately striving to shield them during the investigation.

Commonwealth's Attorney H. Grant Forester was the first official with whom a correspondent talked after arrival in Harlan.

Commonwealth's Attorney Talks.

"The teachers thought we should have held Dr. Winnes. They jumped to the conclusion that he was guilty the moment the body was found. We did not believe he was guilty. The circumstantial evidence might have been strong enough for us to have held him had the convict camp not been there. Five negroes, the evidence shows, might have committed the crime.

"Politics. It would have been the expedient thing for us to have taken the view that the doctor was guilty. The people were clamoring for a conviction. The Pine Mountain School influences a large vote. One of the guards suggested to me that it was to my interest to push the case against the doctor. You see there is a circuit judge's race next year.

"But rather than attempt to railroad a man whom I believe innocent and flimsiest of circumstantial evidence, and he might have been convicted under pressure of an aroused public sentiment, I would sacrifice any political ambition I may have. The crime bears all earmarks of that of a negro."

When questioned as to specific evidence of certain witnesses, the Commonwealth's Attorney was able to give only more or less general answers. He was busy trying cases and his brother, the County Attorney, he explained conducted the investigation before the grand jury.

"The camp guards not only did not help us in the investigation," he said, "but they impeded it, shielded the convicts and made it impossible for us to find the guilty man."

Asked as to what further steps might be taken, the Commonwealth's Attorney applied, after a moment of thought, that he would resubmit the case to the next grand jury, which will convene in January.

"What else can be done?" County Attorney J. C. Forester declared, after he had given the substance of evidence before the grand jury and pointed out that "at least five negroes might have committed the crime."

"The grand jury," he said, "has decided there was not enough evidence to indict anyone. It heard every witness who knew anything that had a bearing on the case."

The camp guards prevented the Harlan authorities from holding a successful inquiry, the County Attorney declared, and he, like his brother, openly charged that the guards "covered up."

The negro convicts were made to believe that if one of them was found to be the criminal that the entire lot would be lynched, the County Attorney said.

"Superintendent Greene told Judge Bailey the prison warden had sent word that if the investigation began to fasten the crime on one of the negroes all should be returned to Frankfort for fear of a wholesale lynching. This was circulated among the prisoners and destroyed any chance we had to obtain evidence from any of them. For then the negroes all began to establish alibis for each other."

County Judge Bailey was called in to Mr. Forester's office and corroborated Mr. Greene's statement.

"I am positive we would have the guilty man now if the guards had not told me the night the body was found that every convict was accounted for," declared Sheriff H. H. Howard. "Although Marcum, in charge of the convicts, knew that the body had been found, he did not come to the camp that night but stayed at his home. I examined the only negro that night, who, so far as I knew, might have been the man but was convinced he wasn't guilty after the examination."

Guards Admit Mistake.

"When I returned to the camp Sunday several of the guards told me they were wrong, that there were five negroes who might have committed the crime. But if one of them did it he had had plenty of them to 'cover up'."

"I was busy in court at the time of the crime," the Sheriff said, "but I turned that work over to deputies and worked night and day on the case. I offered money out of my own pocket in an effort to get evidence against one of the negroes."

Senator Brock also joined in the condemnation of the camp guards, all of whom, he said, should be discharged. He deplored the laxness at the camp and pointed out that with 500 convicts going to work on the roads next year it was necessary that the State take heed of the conditions in the Harlan County camp.

Sure Convicts Are Innocent.

Captain Marcum, in charge of the prisoners, says he is convinced none of his quarries committed the crime.

"I took that stand right at the start and I am sticking to it," he said. "We are now preparing affidavits which will prove none of our negroes did it."

Seven prisoners have escaped since the camp was established in May, Marcum said. There is little incentive for them to leave, he explained, as most of them are serving sentences of from one to two years, and ten days are marked off their time for each month they work roads.

No Report Of Evidence.

The inadequacy of the ordinary inquisitorial machinery of a country to cope with a crime of this character, where minute details may be important, suggests itself to one after a study of the steps taken in Harlan County.

There is no record of the testimony of any witness, except brief minutes kept by the grand jury. The law does not provide for stenographic report of the grand jury evidence. At the Coroner's inquest, which conducted by a Magistrate, no record was kept. Nor was any record made of the story told by Dr. Winnes. Thus, the chances of linking up the evidence sifting it for contradictions and making loose ends meet were reduced materially.

Dr. Winnes was arrested in Frankfort Saturday following the assault on a warrant charging murder. He was taken to Harlan that night and cased for several hours with officials. After they heard his story belief was expressed in his innocence.

He was given the freedom of the city under his "own recognizance."

Sunday he went over to the trail again with officials and 200 citizens. Monday the grand jury took up the case and heard Winnes and other witnesses. Thursday he was dismissed. Before he left he told officials to let him know if he was needed at any time.

In the meantime the detective engaged by the settlement school asked that Winnes be placed in jail and that he be allowed to grill him, but County Judge Bailey refused the request. The view was taken that it was not just to allow Winnes to be given the "third degree."

None of the negroes who were taken to Frankfort the day after the murder was committed and the day before the body was discovered was called before the grand jury. Among these was one of the negroes who had returned unguarded to the mountain during the dinner hour.

A new spirit of determination and co-operation toward running down the criminal seems in evidence here.

The citizens of Harlan are anxious that every resource be exhausted in the man-hunt. Feeling here, nearly two months after the crime, still is high. The mountain folk, pointing out that such an act is foreign to the mountains where women have always been safe, are keenly distressed at the failure to fasten the crime on the guilty man.

EXPECT TOBACCO TO REMAIN LOW. Manufacturers Do Not Think Prices Will Soar Again, The Journal Says.

Recent declines in leaf tobacco in Kentucky and Eastern North Carolina prompt the belief among tobacco men that the peak of high prices for leaf has been passed, says the Wall Street Journal. They do not expect to see prices again climb to the undreamed of levels reached under stimulus of war conditions. From the standpoint of manufacturers this is the most bullish development in five years.

There is no likelihood that declines in leaf will make it necessary for manufacturing companies to take a loss through depreciating inventories. Recently manufacturers have broken away from the practice of carrying several years' supply of leaf. The beginning of the buying season finds supplies at a low ebb, which affords an opportunity to replenish depleted stocks of raw materials at lower prices. This serves to reduce working capital requirements. This is the first time since 1914 that conditions have drifted in that direction.

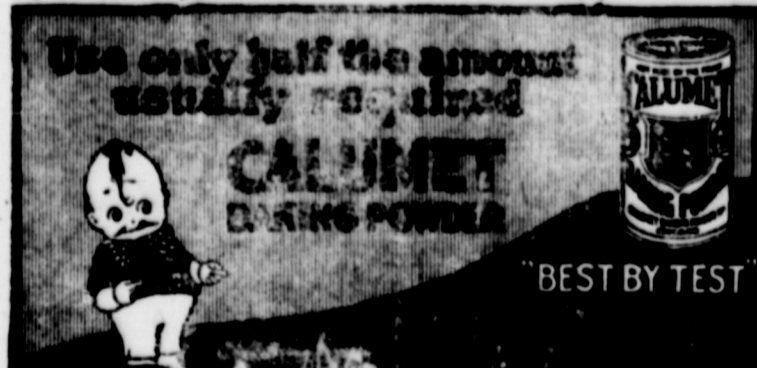

In sharp contrast to the decline in the Southern markets are the advances recorded in Wisconsin and Connecticut markets. Prices there are 30 per cent above last year. These grades are used by cigar manufacturers. Cigar manufacturers still face rising costs and further advances in prices are likely.

No reduction in cigarette prices is looked for at present. However prices for these grades of leaf are slumping, but tobacco being purchased will not go into manufacture until 1921.

BREAKING A HORSE TO RIDE

Take Plenty of Time and Do Not Frighten Young Animal—Teach Gait Separately.

When a horse is to be used for riding it is well first to break him to drive single and double. This will make him quieter to ride.

Horses usually back through fear. In breaking one to ride, take plenty of time and do not frighten him. Put on the saddle and lead him around until he becomes accustomed to it. Do not have the girl too tight. The horse may be tied up for a time and later turned into a paddock with the saddle on.

Next accustom the horse to being mounted, getting on and off a number of times. The assistant should have a lead rope tied around the horse's neck and run through the rings of a snaffle bit. If the horse attempts to play up, punish him with a jerk on the bit. Let the assistant lead the horse with rider around until the horse is familiar with the weight on his back, then dismount the assistant. If the horse becomes rebellious, pull his head sharply to one side; do not let him get it down. The first few rides should be in a small inclosure.

The gait should be taught separately. The first few rides should be the walk; next teach the trot, and then the canter. Spurs should not be used until the horse is well broken. Most saddle horses can be taught to rack. To teach a horse to rack, he should be shod with light shoes or none at all in front and heavy shoes behind. Slitting well back in the saddle, just force the horse out of a walk and he will soon rack. Keep him at it for only a short distance at a time, as it is a new gait to him and tiresome at first. After the gait is learned the duration of the lesson may be gradually lengthened.

FIRST-CLASS SWINE PASTURE

Good Grazing Keeps Animals in Better Health and Reduces Danger of Hog Cholera.

A plea for real hog pastures, not simply hog yards, is made by Forest Henry of Dover, Minn., a well-known institute leader for the agricultural extension division of the Minnesota college of agriculture. Mr. Henry believes in giving the hog a goodly modicum at least of the treatment and attention accorded other farm animals.

He says: "The most profitable hog pasture is a pasture so large that the hogs do not eat one-half of it. If it be alfalfa or clover what remains uneaten at haying time can be cut and cured into hay. An acre of alfalfa or clover will make as much pork, so far as it can be used, as an acre of corn. The one builds up the farm and requires very little labor; the other reduces farm fertility and requires much high-priced labor."

"Good pastures not only make cheap pork but keep the hogs in much better health and reduce the danger of hog cholera to a minimum. In these days a hog cannot be grown on grain alone and at the same time make money for his owner."

SWINE REQUIRE CLEAN LOTS

Not Enough Attention Paid to Pens by Many Hog Raisers—Worms Thrive on Dirt.

A great many hog raisers do not pay enough attention to clean lots. Worms are the cause of many unthrifty pigs. Recent investigations indicate that the eggs of both the common round worm and the lung worm are harbored in old straw piles, manure piles, dirty hog lots and hog wallows. One of the best methods of preventing worms is to clean up the lots and thus minimize the number of worms which will be present. During warm weather it is a good plan to move the hogs entirely out of the winter quarters and at the same time clean them up.

TELLS ORIGIN OF IRISH MIRACLE

Correspondent Gives First Story Of How The Virgin Appeared To College Student.

MANY CURES REPORTED.

By Hugh Curran.

Dublin—The Irish political trouble, already complicated enough, is likely to be further embarrassed by the supernatural. That is the opinion of many concerning the reported manifestations at Templemore, a town in County Tipperary. Templemore was recently the scene of the murder of a police officer, District Inspector Wilson. On the night of the murder police and military broke loose and shot up and burned right and left by way of reprisal. The town hall was destroyed, and in its destruction a military officer, Captain Beattie, of the Northampton Regiment, received injuries from which he died. A private soldier's incinerated remains were found among the debris.

It was following these happenings in Templemore that the disclosure came of strange events both in the town and in the neighborhood. These are hard to explain.

At the house of a small farmer at Curryheen, some miles out, lived a youth of sixteen and one-half years, James Walsh, a student at Roscrea Cistercian College. Very pious and of a wonderful impressive demeanor, this youth was stated to have had visions of the Virgin Mary who appeared to him in the garb of a nun.

Says Virgin Appeared.

On one occasion she informed him that the miracle of Lourdes would be repeated in Ireland, and that he would be the instrument of making it known. On a further occasion the Virgin appeared in the house where he resided on the floor chalked a spot, and at her request the youth brought a spade and dug a hole in the shape of a heart. From this shot up a volume of water and instantly religious statuettes which were in the house came of their own volition and ranged themselves around the spring. Walsh himself fell prostrate and remained for some time. Then a remarkable thing happened. Blood was seen to be oozing from the eyes and noses of the statuettes. The happenings were soon noised abroad, and people came in crowds to observe the phenomenon and to carry away the water.

Some of these figures were removed into Templemore to a house of a man named Dwan, and it is claimed that their presence saved the town from total destruction on the occasion of the military reprisals.

Crowds began to visit the house of Dwan, and in order to accommodate the people and give them opportunity to see for themselves the statues were placed on a table. All could see for themselves the blood then congealed on the statues.

Other Wonders Reported.

Then other wonders followed. Cures of confirmed invalids were reported. These excited the whole neighborhood to a tremendous degree and the report spread over the whole South of Ireland. On Sunday thousands of people came into Templemore from all parts, many even from Dublin. They brought with them the halt, the lame and the blind, all in the hopes of receiving a miraculous cure. Quite a number of cures are reported.

One newspaper correspondent assured me that he saw one person, an apparently hopeless invalid, who had not walked for years, get up and walk about. An ex-soldier named Monaghan proudly tells how he was invalided from the army two years ago from gunshot wounds in the leg. He was badly shaken by the rioting some days before Templemore. He crawled from his own house across the road to Dwan's and the boy Walsh applied the crucifix to his leg and after a shock and great pain he found his leg better and he ran back to his own home, where he was joyfully received by his wife and mother-in-law. His leg, which was painful to touch, was now quite natural and without pain.

A youth who had not been able to walk for years except with crutches had the use of his limbs restored and his delighted father smashed up the crutches before the assembled multitude, many of whom took pieces for souvenirs. At least a half dozen such cures are already reported.

Country Folk Believers.

Amongst the country people, there is no doubt that these remarkable happenings are associated with the political unrest which keeps everyone, especially in the country towns, in a state of extreme nervous tension. They regard them as an intervention of Providence. They believe that were it not for Divine interposition the town of Templemore would have been burned up in the recent trouble. A people who are deeply religious, and who are so much excited as the Irish now are by all that is happening around there, can hardly fail to be moved by events so mysterious and weird. Templemore, for the time being, will become a sort of mecca for the suffering in body, and no less will it be the objective of those whose patriotism is no less strong than is their religious feeling.

It is interesting to note that Roman Catholic priests of the town maintain an attitude of strict detachment regarding the miracles, although some of them who visited the place and saw the results could not help being astonished.

Virtue in Poor Matches. Perhaps, after all, there is some virtue in poor matches. They don't strike.—Answers, London.

TRACTORS ARE DISPLACING HORSES

One Man and Tractor Doing the Work of One Man and Four Horses.

Tractor investigations, with special reference to the influence of the tractor on horse labor, were made in the summer and fall of 1918 on 191 corn-belt farms. The operators of these farms, all tractor owners, were visited by a representative of the United States department of agriculture, and detailed information on all farm operations was gathered. The inquiry covered a full year's work, so that the part played by the tractor might be noted in all its relations.

The investigation was carried on in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. In each of these states localities were visited in which a large number of tractors were in operation. The information obtained, while perhaps strictly and fully applicable only to the farms visited, may be taken as a general guide as to the results which might be obtained in using a tractor on any corn-belt farm of like type and organization.

The statements here made and conclusions drawn are not advanced as being final, but simply as additions to the available information regarding farm tractors.

Range of Conditions.

To obtain results which would give as near a representative average as possible, an effort was made to get reports covering tractor operations under as many different conditions as possible, and hence the conditions represented range from adverse to ideal. The farms visited ranged from flat to hilly. The soils varied from the heaviest gumbo through all the various loams to light, drifting, sandy soils. Some of the gumbo soils now under cultivation on these farms were formerly unproductive, owing to the inability of horses to plow the soils. With the introduction of the tractor, this land has come under cultivation and is now yielding big returns. It was found that tractors were operated successfully in what would be termed unfavorable as well as favorable seasons, which would tend to show their general adaptability.

While the section covered is roughly called the corn belt, farm practices are not uniform throughout the region. In most parts of the eastern corn-belt states commercial fertilizers and lime are used, these being applied by horse-pulled distributors. In preparing the land for crops all the ground may be plowed, or the small grain may be seeded on the previous year's corn ground by disking or harrowing, without plowing. The latter practice reduces work for horses or tractor in the busy season. Whether most of the plowing is done in the fall or only a small part, and the rest in the spring, depends largely on location. Where fall and spring plowing are done in about equal amounts on individual farms, the tractor is used more in the fall than in the spring, and horses vice versa. It was found that when all the reports obtained were grouped together only five more operators plowed in the fall than in the spring, but the number of acres plowed in the fall averaged 23.7 more per farm. The number of men using horses as an auxiliary source of power was practically the same in each case.

Tractor Saves Labor.

Many farms have woodlands, and as these are cleared the tractor is used for sawing wood for market, thus increasing the days of belt operation. The scarcity of labor in 1918 hampered the gathering of crops, and in the states on the eastern edge of the corn belt the tractor was used to a considerable extent in the hay field, to the exclusion of horses.

As corn is the principal crop in this region, the effect of the tractor on horse labor will be more noticeable in the case of this crop than that of any other crop grown, the average acreage of corn per farm of those visited being 35.5 acres, which is 32 per cent of the tillable area of these farms. The remaining crops grown on these farms in order of crop acreage, are: Wheat, hay, oats, barley and rye.

Only the physical relationship of tractor power to horsepower has been considered, and no attempt is made here to compare the relative costs of doing work by these sources of power. The number of horses displaced on these farms is also shown, but no inference has been drawn as to whether the work is being done more cheaply as a result of the change.

Summary of Results.

Briefly summarized, these are the principal facts brought out or emphasized by this study:

1. The number of horses displaced of on 141 farms averaging 346½ acres, on which tractors had been used for a year or over, was 2½ per farm.
2. The average number of tillable acres per horse increased from 26½ to 38½ after the purchase of the tractor.
3. Nine operators out of 191 displaced horses entirely on plowing, disking and harrowing.
4. Only 16 operators allowed their horses to stand idle while the tractor was in use.
5. The number of horses displaced by the tractors on these farms was governed by the number it was necessary to retain for corn cultivation and other work current at the same time, which the tractor could not do.
6. The horses remaining on these farms are doing about 75 per cent of the tractive work and tractors the remainder.
7. The tractor was used for an average of 29 ten-hour days per year on the home farm. No record of the amount of custom work done was obtained.
8. A three-plow tractor on these farms does the work of 8½ horses in plowing, disking, harrowing and harvesting.
9. After purchasing the tractor, the average size of the farms was increased by 22 acres, or 6.13 per cent.
10. The principal advantage of a tractor is its ability to do heavy work in a shorter time than it can be done with horses.

INCREASE PROFITS BY GRADING ALL PRODUCE

Farmer Should Sort According to Size and Quality.

Grade Specifications Recommended by Bureau of Markets Have Benefited Farmers Materially Where Practiced.

When a farmer orders a box of bolts of a certain make and size he does not expect to find a thin layer of the bolts specified on the top of the box and assorted bolts underneath. In the world of commerce a manufacturer who pursued such practices would soon be bankrupt.

The same principle applies to the sale of farm products, say specialists of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture. Before sending produce to market the farmer should sort it as to quality and size. The bureau of markets from time to time has recommended grade specifications for various products, and wherever these recommendations have been followed satisfaction and increased monetary returns have generally resulted. For instance, it is estimated that in 1919 the potato growers in Virginia increased their profit a half million dollars by grading their produce. Similar results are being obtained in other states.

PLOWING FOR WINTER WHEAT

Decided Advantage in Preparing Land Early Is Shown by Experiments in Kansas.

In Kansas experiments, wheat planted on land plowed in late July or early August yields on the average of 15 bushels per acre, whereas, wheat planted on land plowed in September has yielded only 11 bushels per acre.

Providence To The Rescue.

All over this country there has been wailing and lamenting over the scarcity of coal, and over the fact that in many places there is no coal to be had—above ground.

Coal barons have been rubbing their hands in glee at the prospect of exorbitant profits when the pinch of winter drives desperate householders to pay any price to prevent freezing to death.

Newspapers for months have been full of detailed accounts of juggling and profiteering in coal. Facts were laid bare in the hope that public prosecutors, jarred into the open by the exposures, talked largely, vowed dire punishments, and did practically nothing except to pinch an occasional "small fry."

It began to look as if millions would have to be gouged or let their families freeze, for there is coal in abundance under ground.

The situation was desperate. Then a new element entered—one which reckons not of politicians, or craven prosecutors, or profiteering or graft. That element was Providence.

Winter was pushed back. Summer was pushed forward. The warm rays of the sun enveloped the earth at a time when icy blasts should be blowing and furnace fires should be roaring.

God, who created man, came to the rescue when man demonstrated his impotency to handle the situation.

But God is not a politician.

Looking Ahead.

We are not going to have a panic in this country. We believe that all danger of such has passed.

But we will in all probability soon have a period of business depression. That is to be expected.

Producers can not afford to continue paying the high wages they are now paying without keeping prices up—and that they can not afford to do, because the public is refusing to buy.

Now the result.

The employing class (capitalists, if you care to term them such) are curtailing production and are laying off men in large numbers. They will continue to do so until production is at a minimum. In some cases mills may close down entirely. This action will gradually extend to all parts of the country and into all lines of industry.

The millions of employees who are thus thrown out of work can not afford to remain idle for any great length of time. They and their families must eat.

In time necessity will force them back into the shops at reduced wages, and production will start up again. With a reasonable profit for the producer and a considerable reduction in prices to the consumer. The laboring man will be no worse off in the end, because his living expenses will be reduced in proportion to the reduction in his wages.

Two material facts stand out above everything else.

First the public will not long continue to buy at present prices, except actual necessities.

Second, prices can not be reduced to any great extent until the cost of labor comes down.

We may never return to a pre-war basis, but the above will be the method adopted by the capitalists to return production to something like normal conditions.

We may be wrong in our prediction, but this is as we see it, based upon existing conditions.

As The Editor Sees It

We are all ready to criticize a young girl if she becomes wild, or glib, or indiscreet. But wouldn't it be even better to look beneath the surface, and consider the actions of the parents who allowed her to travel the dangerous path in the days of her childhood?

Perhaps you have noticed the newspaper accounts of the number of young girls who are reported missing in the big cities. In one big city alone it averages two thousand a year. Many of these girls have drifted in from the country towns and farms in order to better their condition, and have fallen an easy prey to the vultures who are lying in wait for them.

Most of these disappearances are the result of the girls taking up with strange men on the streets, or in the parks, or the cafes.

But the girls are not always to blame entirely for allowing themselves to be led astray. Often they are the victims of neglect on the part of their parents during the formative period of their characters.

A hen never neglects its little chicks until they are able to care for themselves.

But some parents are not as careful or considerate as the mother hen.

They allow their girls to begin running wild while yet in their tender years. This spirit of wildness, ignored in infancy, grows with time until it reaches the point where it is beyond control.

And then the "port of missing girls."

Not all parents neglect the proper training of their children, of course, but too many for the public weal.

Swinebroad Sells

Another Farm.

Mr. G. B. Swinebroad had another dandy sale last Saturday in Bath county, when he sold a 480 acre farm for $165.00 an acre, to Mr. Thos. N. Coons, of Mt. Sterling, for a total of $79,315.50. He tells us that there were a number of bidders on hand and for a while it was a problem as to who would be the last bidder.

Mass Meeting

At Court House.

Dr. Walker K. Brown, of Washington D. C. will address the people of Garrard County and Lancaster Friday evening at 7:30. He comes under the auspices of the National Red Cross and is one of the leading workers of the organization.

No one can well afford to miss an opportunity to hear one holding as high a position as a member of the National Board of Health.

Remember the date and the place and be on hand to hear what he has to say for our common good.

H. S. Hudson, Chairman Red Cross.

Fruit Exhibit.

A very creditable display of apples can be seen in the store window of Curry and Gully. It is the result of a friendly contest among the children of the seventh grade of the Lancaster Graded School of which grade Mrs. Theo. Curry is teacher. As an incentive to the children who raise fruit, and as agriculture is now being taught in the grade, prizes were offered to the one showing the best display of apples. The result being that of Miss Mary Lee Holtzclaw won first prize on her exhibit of Wine Saps; second premium going to Craig Goeh, on his Greening's, while the third prize was also won by Miss Mary Lee Holtzclaw on her display of York Imperial.

Another Paper

For Somerset.

For the 'teenth time Somerset is to have a Republican political newspaper. They come and blossom forth in great glory and then fade away never to be heard of again. It seems in Pulaski county every faction of the Republican party must have a newspaper—quite an expensive thing to have—but what is expensive when an office is at stake? The Journal has seen dozens of them come and go—just like this one will—but thanks to loyal friends we are still here doing business. The people are tired of so much politics and if we read them right they will not support any institution started for personal and political gain. What we need in Pulaski County is construction and not destruction. These political sheets do more harm to the county in one year than can be repaired in ten. Who the editor will be we do not know. Who the owners are we can guess. You have our sympathy gentlemen on Saturday—pay day.—Somerset Journal.

Misses Helen and Lucille Stapp entertained Saturday evening at their pretty home with a Halloween party. It was the largest and most brilliant event this autumn and the hospitality was an enjoyable one for about forty guests. The entire house was thrown open and lighted with jack-o-lanterns, yellow shades, yellow flowers, and black cats. All of the guests and hosts wore Halloween costumes. Assisting in entertaining were Miss Lucille Sutton, Miss Eugenia Dunlap and Miss Mamie Stapp. The table in the dining room was covered with a yellow cloth and as a center decoration there was a pumpkin filled fruit and yellow candles in candelabras were shaded in yellow decorated in black cats and black witches' heads, black cats and black witch's heads, cakes iced in white and yellow were served. Every detail was charmingly carried out and the hours were much enjoyed.

The Seniors and Juniors of the Lancaster High School entertained at a Halloween party Friday evening in honor of the foot ball team of Lancaster at the school building. The decorations were artistic and beautiful, and brilliantly lighted with jack-o-lantern, yellow candles and on the lights and lamps were shades of yellow decorated with black cats. The hall was hung with jack-o-lanterns and decorated with heaps of corn stalks, autumn leaves and plants and the scene was one of rare beauty. During the joyous occasion music added greatly to the pleasure of the guests. Delicious refreshments of white and yellow brick cream white and yellow cakes and mints were served. A canopy of foliage and autumn leaves hung from the ceiling in the hall and swinging from it were weird lights and banks of corn stalks, which designed the fortune tellers den and beside it stood a typical old witch dressed in black with a black witch's hat. This was one of the prettiest events of the autumn season and all were loud in their praise of the splendid occasion afforded them by the charming hosts.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Clark and took away their little infant son, James Gilbert.

Miss Mildred Parsons has gone to Berea to enter school. She is a very intelligent girl and we hope she will have good success in her school work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Carter entertained Sunday at dinner Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Matlock and children, Mrs. Balcomb, Mrs. Jack Davis and children.

The death angel also visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Pennington on Oct. 28th, and took for its victim their darling little son, J. D., who was only a few weeks old. The community extend their sympathy to the bereaved parents in the loss of their little one. May the parents ever look to the one who said, "Suffer little children and come unto Me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." A precious one from us has gone.

The Climax Of

Live Stock Shows

Now that the State Fair circuit has been completed and the live stock shows of lesser magnitude announced for the current season have terminated with success in every instance, the industry is preparing for the greatest event of the year—the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago during the first week of December. After such a successful display season of domestic animal life section of the United States, magnitude and interest are assured at this event.

The live stock industry is now recuperating after the stress of war period depletion all over the world, the international character of the Chicago event giving it trans-Atlantic and antipodean importance. An unusually large representation is promised by Great Britain, France, Italy, Canada, Argentina, Australia and other countries—all potential markets for purebred cattle, hogs and sheep produced in the United States. Feeding problems will be elucidated and the new feature inaugurated last year under the auspices of the Chicago Board of Trade—a grain and hay exhibit—will be on a vastly greater scale. All the breeds will be represented in the arena, the entire aggregation, consisting the greatest assemblage of purebred live stock ever assembled for competitive purposes.

Novelties have been provided for the evening entertainment, which has always been a popular feature of the Exposition.

Baptist Church Notes.

A new proposition has been offered the pastor of this church which makes it very hard for him to leave this pastorate. A move is now being made whereby it is hoped that he may be free to accept the pastorate of this church for another year. It is expected that a definite answer may be given next Sunday and it is earnestly desired that a large audience be present.

FLAVOR OF SOME FRUITS BETTER RETAINED WITHOUT USING SUGAR

Putting on the Rubber, Which Should Be Immersed in Boiling Baking-Soda Solution for Ten Minutes Before Using.

Is it possible to can fruits successfully without sugar and, if so, what is the best method, are questions asked nowadays by many housewives in view of the scarcity and high price of sugar. Sometimes fruits needed to make the diet more palatable and varied during the winter have gone to waste because sugar was not available for canning when they were ripe. Such waste can be prevented, for, according to the experts of the United States department of agriculture, apples somewhat underripe, also gooseberries, raspberries, blueberries, and other berries, and sweet varieties of plums and cherries may all be canned in their own juices without the addition of sugar. In fact, many housewives think that the flavor of many fruits canned without sugar and sweetened just before using is better and more like that of fresh fruit than when canned with large quantities of sugar or in a heavy syrup. If the fruit is very sour or is canned in large pieces, heating for a few minutes when adding the sugar before serving will make it penetrate the fruit more thoroughly and evenly.

Fruits may be canned in their own juices without the addition of any sweetening in at least three ways:

A simple method of canning, especially good for such soft, juicy fruits as berries, is as follows: Pack the washed fruit into the jar and, without adding any liquid of any kind, process the fruit in the customary way for the usual period, or perhaps four or five minutes longer. The processing draws the juice from the fruit and the canned product often has an even better flavor than when syrup is added.

Another way of canning fruit without sugar is to cook the ripest fruits over moderate heat until the juice is drawn from them, adding no water unless necessary and in any case only a very little. Drain the juice from the fruit through a jelly bag, bring this juice to the boil, and use it like boiling syrup to fill the jars into which the firmer fruit has been packed. Then process the jars of fruit in the usual way.

Still Another Method.

Still another method is to cook the fruit to a sauce of the desired consistency in an open kettle, and, without adding any sugar, pour it into jars scalded in the following way: Cover the jars, tops, and rubbers with boiling water, remove them from the water one at a time as needed, being careful not to touch or wipe the jars inside, pour in the fruit while boiling hot, and seal each jar at once. This method is not so uniformly successful as when the fruit is cooked in the jar, because it is difficult to prevent bacteria and molds from getting into the fruit and the jar while they are being filled and sealed. Many housekeepers, however, can acid fruits and tomatoes in this way successfully year after year.

DRY FOODSTUFFS BY SUN OR HEAT

Sundrying Demands Rainless Season of High Temperature and Bright Sunshine.

IDEAL CONDITIONS OUTLINED

Where a Glass-Covered Solar Drier Is Employed, Both Dust and Insects Are Excluded—Home-Made Equipment Efficient.

Wherever climatic conditions make it possible, sundrying is the least expensive method of preserving foodstuffs. Successful sundrying demands a rainless season of bright sunshine and high temperature, and the extent to which it can be carried on in any district is determined by the length of its rainless midsummer and autumn period. Ideal conditions for sundrying all fruits, both early and late, are found in the interior districts of California, where sundrying has become an industry of large proportions, and throughout the Southwest. In the intermountain region of the Northwest, over the larger part of the Great Plains area, and in all but the coastal portions of the Southern states, the sundrying of such early-maturing fruits as berries, cherries, apricots, and peaches is everywhere possible. In much of this territory warm, rainless weather usually continues sufficiently far into the autumn to permit sundrying of such late-maturing fruits as apples, pears, and plums, as well as of such vegetables as sweet corn, pumpkin and squash. Outside these areas and in any region in which the late summer and early autumn are characterized by frequent rainfall or periods of low temperature and high humidity, it will not be wise to depend wholly upon sundrying, as a few days of rainy weather may cause the loss of a large amount of valuable material, specialists in United States department of agriculture say.

Disadvantage of Sundrying.

As ordinarily conducted, sundrying in the open air has the disadvantage that the drying material is exposed for a considerable length of time to the visits of insects which deposit their eggs in it and also to dust borne by air currents. Insects may be excluded by providing the trays in which the material is dried with covers of mosquito netting tacked tightly in place over the top, but such covers do not wholly prevent the entrance of dust. Both dust and insects are excluded if a glass-covered solar drier is employed, and a device of this character should be used in any district in which high winds carrying much dust prevail during the drying season.

Using Artificial Heat.

If artificial heat is used, the work is independent of weather conditions, and it is possible to dry a considerable number of foodstuffs which ordinarily cannot be dried in the sun; for example, water varieties of apples, prunes, and such vegetables as potatoes and carrots. It has the disadvantage of requiring close supervision in order that overheating and subsequent injury to the material may be avoided, but if the work is properly done the products will retain their natural appearance and flavor to a greater degree than it is possible in sundrying. The process is more expensive than sundrying, since an evaporator must be constructed or purchased and a supply of fuel provided. For the individual family the investment represented by the evaporator need not be a burden; anyone who can use ordinary tools can construct in spare time and with a trifling outlay for material a cook-stove drier, while the heat of the stove or range employed for cooking can be utilized for operating the drier. If this home-made equipment is properly constructed it is quite as efficient as the similar small drier sold on the market at several times its cost.

A Bright Idea

By ALVAH J. GARTH

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"I don't suppose you care to have me drive you over to the harvest home in the rig Uncle Justin has given me?" observed Mort Bissell, with a searching glance at the prettiest face that had ever shone on him—that of Tessie Upham.

"And why not?" clearly and unhesitatingly challenged the fair young girl, with no trace of false pride or artful evasion in her manner.

"Oh, well, it is hardly a chariot, and the old nag is slow and clumsy looking. Now, if Uncle Justin's twenty-first birthday gift had been an automobile or a patent spring buggy!"

"We could have passed as beings with means, whereas we are both poor as church mice. Your company is what I appreciate, Mort, and I am not ashamed to ride in an humble, modest rig in keeping with our circumstances."

"You are a girl in a thousand, and you make me very happy, Tessie!" said Mort with heartiness and emotion. "Never mind. The old rig may be the starting point of a fortune, and the grander things of life may come along, if we are patient and persevering. Uncle Justin gave me some good advice. He suggested that I go to Springfield next week, and see if I cannot make an arrangement with some manufacturer to canvass for the sale of his goods, and deliver with the rig. There are half a dozen fellows I know of who have worked up a fine business."

They were nature's own children, these two, and happiness was bound to come to such sensible and harmonious souls. Tessie was only eighteen, but she knew more about house-keeping and thrift than the average woman of thirty. They had radiant plans for the future, content when they would occupy two rooms in the Upham home, until they could earn and save enough to build a little cottage on a village lot Uncle Justin had promised them.

Mort was gone for half a week. He returned one afternoon about four o'clock, made out Tessie busy bustling in the kitchen, and went to the rear door.

"Hello, lovey," he hailed, but at a glance she discerned that he was not enthused over his success in the city. She did not question him, however, but in her bright, pretty way told him how lonesome she had been during his brief absence and recited some of the events that had transpired in the meantime.

"Well," he said, after a time, "I haven't made the connection I expected."

"No?" interrogated Tessie gently. "I suppose it takes time to get things running right."

"The only two houses that at all encouraged me," went on Mort, "were one a concern that publishes music. The children grow impatient waiting for the pictures, and when I suggested to little Bonita that the pictures ought to be shown first and then permit the children to go home she promptly replied: 'Yes; but then nobody would stay.'—Exchange.

"Why, Mort, you are smart enough to do anything that anybody else can do."

"Yes, perhaps," assented Mort a trifle gloomily. "But I was looking for a strict business proposition that will bring me in touch with people in a commercial way, like storekeepers and large buyers. What are you making, Tessie?"

A lot of bobbing, bristling bits of airy nothingness were visible in a kettle of boiling lard, and on the kitchen table was a great yellow crock heaped high with those that had just been removed from the receptacle.

"Vanities," replied Tessie. "Some friends are coming over this evening and I had some surplus dough, so I am making it up into something palatable. Try some."

She handed Mort a well-filled plate. He soon dispatched what it held, for the filmy "vanities" had little of bulk or substance. Then she took some dough, with a deft twist of her pretty hands made it into a graceful cornucopia, let it cook for a minute or two, and took it to the pantry, filled it with cream and berries and passed it to Mort with the words:

"There is something more substantial."

To her surprise Mort gave a great start. He held the delicacy before him, turning it round and round and inspecting it with critical eyes of suggestion and enlightenment.

"Why, Tessie!" he burst forth abruptly. "you've made a regular ice cream cone!"

"And pray what is a regular ice cream cone?" inquired Tessie.

"A common article of use and profit in the city drug stores, and candy and soda water places. We are of the backwoods, surely, not to have had them introduced here long since. Where is my list?" and he produced it. "Yes, there are over a hundred places in the county where they sell ice cream. Tessie, my love, can you make up cones like that right along?"

"The simplest and easiest thing in the world, dear," came the prompt reply.

"Then our fortune is made!" declared Mort rapturously.

Which was somewhat extravagant, but the experiment that followed with these mutually industrious partners ushered in a business that was a stepping stone to larger commercial activities by the time of their wedding.

It is recorded of the primitive American Indian women that child-birth with them was entirely painless.
